Looking Forward; MOVING FORWARD

Preamble: The Starfish

Along the beach, there were miles of starfish that the waves had bumped out of the water. A young man diligently picked them up one by one, and threw them back into the ocean.

A tourist who observed asked "Why are you throwing starfish back into the ocean?" To which the young man replied: "The sun is up and the tide is going out. If I don't throw them in now, they'll die".

'But young man, don't you realize that there are miles and miles of beach and starfish all along it? You can never make a difference,' says the tourist.

While still listening, the young man bent down, picked up another starfish, threw it into the sea and asked the tourist "Do you think I made a difference for that one?"

Looking Forward; Moving Forward

Dear Graduands,

Assalam alaykum Warahmotullah Wabarakatuhu.

A very big congratulation to you and your predecessors. Mind you both 2020 and 2021 sets are being celebrated together. This is so due to this pandemic that came knocking suddenly.

There were a lot of things I never could have imagined in a pre-COVID world, ranging from wearing a face mask everywhere I go to disinfecting my hands every seconds on the go. But here we are!

Alhamdulillah, you have all been a part of Mahmud Ahmadiyya College. The entire staff and I are very proud to be part of your story for the number of years that our relationships have lasted.

Although living through the Covid era will be a defining time in all our lives, all praise is due to Allah in that it has not cast a shadow over us. I am sure you have all had wonderful moments during our stay in the College.

As Henry Ford wisely said "Coming together is a beginning, keeping together is progress and working together is success". Thus, looking back over the last six years certainly, there was a beginning; thankfully there was progress and hopefully there shall be absolute success for all. In sha Allah. But to attain this success, we must LOOK FORWARD and be ready to MOVE FORWARD. Hence, the short story read above should be pondered on.

As you look ahead to your future, take time to pause and consider how you can make an impact. You may not cure cancer or proffer a solution to COVID - though we pray you make good history in life - but each of you has the power to change the people you interact with and the world you inhabit.

To achieve the above easily, here are three points to serve as a guidance: First, endeavour to bring joy to someone with a smile or kind word because a small everyday action can infect those around you with positivity and optimism. Qur'an 2 v 178 explicitly states how to relate with fellow beings. Now more than ever, we need this. Bringing joy to someone else is almost certain to brighten your own day too.

Second, do things to promote your health and wellness. Nothing is more important than your personal health and safety. Most young adult/teenagers these days engage in different drug or substance abuses.

Apart from being Muslims and understanding the injunctions of Islam on such activities, never you engage in such for the benefit of your personal health. Note that if you don't take care of yourself and your loved ones - body, mind and spirit - life will not be satisfactorily to live. Qur'an 2 v 220.

Third, embrace the journey you are on. As you are expecting wonderful things to happen along the way, also prepare for hard work (Qur'an 67 v 3). Learn that life is a test. It isn't always sunshine and roses. Never believe all that you see on social media.

Sometimes, life is just plain hard and it takes tremendous strength to find joy in what you can control. Thus, instead of letting the would-have, could-have or should-have to control you, remember after every difficulty, there is ease. Qur'an 5 v 7.

Conclusion

Islamic tradition holds that moral qualities and good actions elevate the status of a man. Both Qur'an and hadiths often speak in emphatic manners to instruct the Muslims to adopt a morally good character.

Hazrat Muhammad Mustapha (saw) said "The best people among you are those who have the best manners and character".

Hence, as you look forward while moving forward, maintain good character.

Be prayerful always and be friendly with your Qur'an.

Remember Al-Qur'an is the best guidance for mankind Qur'an 2 v 3.

Fiiamonillah!!!

VALEDICTORY SPEECH BY

FASASI SULTAN ADEOYE

Head Boy (2020/2021 Set)

The Board of Directors, the Respected Principal, the Vice Principal, the PTA Chairman and all Staff Members of Mahmud Ahmadiyya College, my Fellow Colleagues, Students, Ladies and Gentlemen.

As Salam Alaikum Warahmatullah Wabarakatuh

On behalf of my colleagues, I welcome you all to this valedictory service for the outgoing 2020/2021 set of the great School. It is a privilege to have served Mahmud Ahmadiyya College as its Head Boy for one fulfilling year. This is my sixth and final year at Mahmud Ahmadiyya College and it is with a mixture of excitement and sadness that I deliver this speech.

I am sad to be leaving the school I have spent most of my teenage life at. But at the same time, I am excited by what is in front of me and the challenges ahead.

Although we could not enjoy our tenure due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the little time spent here being the Head Boy, I have had to learn sometimes to give priority to others' interests over mine. A lesson which will serve me well in the future.

To my colleagues, we finished the 2020/2021 session as Senior Students in a comfortable and safe environment and headed into a new year, a new institution as new students facing the unknown and with many new challenges ahead.

We are the students that got through the earthquake years ago; we are the students that took our opportunities and were lucky enough to have quality teachers who allowed us to achieve them; we are the students who will be leaving the School with a smile on our faces and a sense of satisfaction and gratitude for our time at Mahmud Ahmadiyya College.

Personally, my school life at MACI has given me so much. The daily training - waking up by 4:00am, performing Tahajjud every morning and others - have become part of me. The discipline, competitive environment on the sports field, the comprehensive but rigid classroom learning, public speaking and the list goes on have moulded me to become an achiever.

Last but not the least is the opportunity to hang out with my friends and develop friendship that will hopefully last a long time. As a student who has come through this era, I have seen the school grow and evolve whilst keeping its tradition, standards and core values which please me greatly. According to the motto of the College 'Seeking Knowledge to Serve Allah, the philosophy of the College is to greece for moral, academic and spiritual education for every human being in particular and children with Islamic background and whoever wishes to benefit from the excellent Islamic philosophy of wholesome education of moulding, enhancing and developing the intellect, physique, morality and spirituality of child should not hesitate to bring their children to this great School. For perfect devotion to the service of Almighty Allah and humanity, the College has been able to render its qualitative service with the help of blessed, qualified, dedicated, sound and seasoned academic staff and non-academic staff. We cannot forget these people because they leave a memorable mark in our hearts.

This brings me to a quote which has been instrumental in the development of my personal philosophy "Where there is disaccord, may we bring harmony. Where there is error, may we bring truth. Where there is despair, may we bring hope and where there is doubt, may we bring faith" - that is my wish for all young faces on this stage to bring to the world.

To my fellow junior colleagues, I want to emphasize to you that there is much on offer. Please, enjoy MACI as long as it takes and take on what is presented to you and also work hard. Always remember this: life will throw challenges at you, but it is how you face these challenges that makes you a champion.

I would like to thank my teachers, many of whom have encouraged me to follow and pursue that in which I truly believe. I would like to thank my peers for teaching me many lessons on the social spectrum, such as conflict resolution and uplifting morale. I would also like to acknowledge the hard-work of all the students within our leadership terms for the never-ending effort to improve our school and bring positivity to each and every corner and also for their co-operation. I must also thank my parents for the many sacrifices made in giving me the opportunity to attend such a Wonderful College. Thank you

VALEDICTORY

BUSARI SAMIAT MOJISOLA

Head Girl (2020/2021 Set)

The Board of Directors, Respected Principal Ma, Vice Principal (Acad.) Sir, Respected Teachers, other Members of Staff, Dear Students, Distinguished Colleagues, Ladies and Gentlemen.

As Salam Alaikum Warahmatullah Wabarakatuh
On this special day, while we are feeling nostalgic about the old days spent in the College, we also have the feeling and anxiety as the new life is waiting ahead of us. We are nevertheless, forever going to remember the life's lesson we have learnt from our respected Principal, V.P and all the teachers.

I would like to thank our Ag. Principal, Mrs Fagbolade T. A., who has always portrayed the image of a highly disciplined personality yet so kind and humble. I must acknowledge that we have learnt the most important lesson of life from you, i.e., to be disciplined and self-restrained. Your 'no tolerance' towards ragging was one of the most appreciated steps that earned huge accolades for our College. I am very sure that the lessons of life we have learnt from you and the staffs would help us climb the ladders of success while being humble and modest at the same time.

"Thank You" is a very small word to you, Sir/Ma. The kindness and gesture our teachers have shown to us is incomparable and we promise that we shall land in the new world with positive approach and attitude. In fact, all the teachers and each and every staff and all the students have been very cooling and co-operative. The special relation and bonds we shared amongst ourselves are forever going to remain in our hearts and we shall always miss the lovely, crazy, memorable, bitter, funny days spent here. This place has been like the second home for us, where we have spent most of our time (6 years).

I would also like to thank our Mathematics Teacher, Mrs Moshood, who always admonishes us whenever she comes to our class. She is kind-hearted, sympathetic towards each and every student. I am sure she is going to display this same motherly love, humility and kindness in years to come.

To be honest, I don't want to call it a farewell speech but it is the universal truth we all have to face whether we want or not; everything must eventually end. Endings are inevitable. Leaves fall, you close a book, you say good bye.

To my juniors, I would like to advise them to participate in each and every activity the school authority plans, as you would not only learn many things practically, you would also become great ambassadors of yourselves. If you fail, never give up, because FAIL means "First Attempt In Learning". END is not the end, END means "Efforts Never Die". If you get NO as an answer, don't feel reluctant to ask again, remember NO means "Next Opportunity". Thank you, friends – for all the fun, the hilarious laughter, funny bitten, and unforgettable moments shared together. I wish you all happy adventurous, fantastic new friendships, amazing experiences in the future journey of a lifetime.

As we all set to step out from the College to the new world, we would like to show our gratitude to all those who shared their wisdom, skills and experiences with us and prepared us for the new world. Utmost appreciation is to Almighty Allah (S.W.T) Who has guided us through these past years till this day. May He continue to guide and bless us bountifully. God bless you all.

SOCIAL MEDIA: Importance and Effects

By Oladele Taoheed Olawale (Mr)

Social media generally refers to all the websites, apps or internet communication tools or devices that enable users to quickly share content online and engage in communication with other users. The online framework of a social media site is commonly referred to as a “platform” – basically, just the working structure of the site that facilitates communication between users.

Users of social media platforms, such as Facebook and Twitter, share and exchange thoughts, opinions, ideas, photos and events. The widespread adoption and use of social media have radically changed both the means and the manner by which people communicate with each other.

Social media has also made a dramatic impact on the ways that companies market their products and services. Nearly all major companies now have a social media consultant or expert on staff or under contract to advise and guide the company with their online presence, activities, and what has come to be known as “social media marketing.”

While social media offers people a host of advantages, it also potentially poses significant threats to personal privacy, users’ mental health and the existing social fabric.

Characteristics of Social Media

Several aspects of social media help to explain its massive popularity and widespread use. One such aspect is how social media platforms enable you to, virtually instantaneously, communicate information to large numbers of people.

For example, in a matter of just a few seconds, you can create an online post and update your entire circle of friends regarding the new job you just started, including sharing a photo of yourself in your new office. Compare that to the much more tedious and time-consuming task of telephoning each one of your friends individually to share your news and having to repeat your “announcement” over and over again, dozens of times.

Another key aspect of social media is the ability to create and share visuals, be they simple “selfies” or memes. The ability to share photos, videos, graphics, and other visual content is hugely appealing to vast numbers of people. Some social media sites, such as Pinterest and Instagram, are geared specifically for sharing photos or video content.

In contrast, Facebook, while it allows you to freely share visual content, is seen more as a site for sharing content, such as thoughts and opinions, or news stories that you’ve read, and engaging in group discussions of various topics.

Two other elements of social media that have contributed to its success are the ease of access to the platforms – basically, anyone with either a computer or a cell phone can readily access and use social media sites – and the fact that posted content is relatively uncensored, at least much less so than, for example, content typically published in newspapers or magazines.

“Relatively” is a keyword there, however. In recent years, complaints of censorship from users have mushroomed in number. Conservative individuals and organizations especially have complained that their posted social media content is frequently censored by the operators of the platforms. Twitter, Google, and Facebook are all facing numerous major lawsuits filed by users that, in short, allege that their content has been heavily censored in a discriminatory manner.

Social media sites consistently score high on any “ease of access” rating. All you need to do to get going on a social media platform is sign up and create a “profile” – a brief description of yourself that includes basic information such as your gender and what area of the country you live in. Once you’ve done that, you can instantly begin creating, posting, and sharing content, and connecting with other users of the platform. Following, friending, or subscribing to their content are the common means of establishing online connections with other users.

Social Media and Business

Since the turn of the century, social media marketing has become a focal point of the advertising and marketing campaigns of companies – both large and small – worldwide. Communicating with existing and potential customers through social media offers numerous advantages to businesses.

First, compared to traditional avenues of advertising, social media marketing is much less expensive. The costs for social media marketing often involve only the creation of advertising content and the compensation for the employee(s) charged with posting material on the various social media websites.

Second, businesses can instantly communicate information to their entire database of current and/or potential customers. They also have the ability to tailor advertising to certain demographic groups and then communicate that content only to the targeted customer segment.

The ease of connection and communication through social media platforms enables companies to much more deeply and effectively engage with their target market. They can converse with customers at length and in-depth, obtaining valuable feedback about their company and its products and services, and then use the feedback obtained to craft future marketing campaigns. Through social media sites, a company can also provide its customers with easy access to customer service, 24/7.

Social media makes it possible for companies to “humanize” their company and to much more quickly and easily build, establish, and maintain their brand identity and public image.

The Dangers Posed by Social Media Platforms

Social media has exploded in popularity, among all types of people, all across the world. In the developed world and emerging market countries, nearly everyone is a user of at least one social media platform. However, social media’s widespread adoption and use have created significant new threats to things such as people’s privacy and mental health.

Recent studies by psychologists have uncovered the facts that people engaging with others through social media has led to measurable increases in depression, stress/anxiety, suicides (especially among young people), and problems of low self-esteem.

In addition to the threats posed to our mental health, the widespread use of social media has also created and/or amplified threats of a more practical, tangible nature – such as stalking, identity theft, invasion of privacy, and political and social polarization.

Besides, “The Social Dilemma”, a 2020 Netflix docudrama, explores the broader, more general dangers posed by social media. The film is made stronger by being heavily-laden with testimony from technology experts, including former Google designer Tristan Harris, who, along with many others, exposes and warns of the ways that social media sites actively use things such as machine learning algorithms and Artificial Intelligence software programs that are designed to essentially increase people’s “addiction” to using social media and even to mould people’s thoughts, opinions, and ways of thinking.

In short, the film alleges that major social media companies are actively engaged in the practice of nothing less than mind control. One particularly chilling comment in the movie is made by Jeff Siebert, a former Twitter executive – “Every single action you take is carefully monitored and recorded.”

In the developing countries like Nigeria, a small percentage of young people do use the social media for pecuniary gains as many of them use it for pleasures. You will see many youths surfing pornographic sites, checking friends’ whatsapp statuses, checking pictures/videos on Facebook and Instagram.

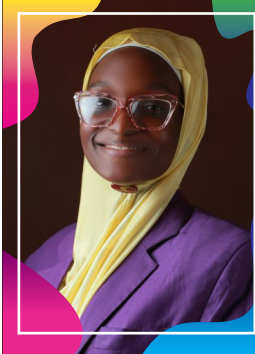

What’s the ultimate aim of all these efforts being made by social media giants like Twitter and Facebook? According to internet activist Jaron Lanier, as reported in an article on singularityhub.com, it’s “changing what you do, how you think, and who you are.”

The dangers posed by social media are made more severe by the very nature of social media itself. Consider the massive size in terms of users of social media sites such as Facebook, Twitter, and YouTube. Then throw in consideration of major social and political issues such as freedom of speech and the right to privacy.

Finally, note the extent to which social media has fundamentally altered the ways in which we regularly connect, communicate, engage, and interact with each other. These days, visitation is often adopted whenever we think about the welfare of people we care about or who need it because of the great influence of Social Media.

TOY AND THE OWNER

Toy, as it appears, has some distinguishing features that makes it have additional responsibilities to its owner, for instance, on and off, search, recharge & replacement of battery, control and monitor, life and death, etc.

The similitude of many parents nowadays is that of a toy and the owner. Many a time we subject our children to behaving like a toy. We must know that children are not toys, though toys have characteristics of human beings with aids of power in the form of batteries. Our children are human beings which were created by Allah (Al-Khaliq) in different stages and cannot be circumvented.

Can a woman fast-track any process of development, however, challenging the periods were? The answer from a sane and reasonable person must be (Never) "LAA". Why then are we such in haste to train our children this time? Why do we want a fourteen-year old boy/girl to enter into the university by fire by force?

Dear, the truth of the matter is that a university education is meant for adult, not children. Therefore, you should allow your children to have completed primary and secondary education because these syllabuses are designed to build them gradually for higher education challenges. Using short cut in these processes will hamper their future progress.

Let us desist from:

- Comparing our children with someone else's children; allow them to move according to their ability;
- My children must study a particular course. Their interest matters a lot;
- Gate-crashing any class without specialist advice. The children are subjected to learn in those stages;
- Patronising special classes/ centres in the name of tutorial centres. Many of them are examination malpractices centres, not educational centres;
- Doing private examination (GCE) before SSCE MAY/JUNE and JUNE/JULY may be inappropriate. Both latter examinations are enough for serious students.

Finally, you should know that all of us are shepherds and we are all answerable to Allah on how we care for the sheep under our watch.

May God help us all.

Yours fraternally,
Adegoke ABDUL-RASHEED

THE WORLD WE WANT

By Tahira Adefarati (SSS 3)

The world we want
We as children need a world
That provides life-time opportunities
And satisfying activities
The world we want
Isn't a world full of poverty
Nor filled with corruption
We want a world of liberty
The world we want
Where the poor are fulfilled
And there's no difference between
The governed and the governors
The world we want
Is a world where children
Known as tomorrow's leaders
Learn to be great readers
The world we want
Is a world where our nation
Distributes the world's greatest population
Of successful ladies and gentlemen
The world we want
Is an accomplished world

DYSTOPIA

The bangs and booms
Od rockets by goons
Clad in military regalia
Ought to be banished
To a hell-like dystopia
Clandestine operations
To reduce the rations
Increase the oppression
Martyr the congregation
Air-strikes create craters
Brother drags his sisters
Ummi, Abu lost in the disaster
We seem to have lost everything
But not our character
We are the faithful
In this Earth and the Hereafter

LINGUISTIC TRAPS FOR ENGLISH AS SECOND LANGUAGE

MISUSE OF IDIOMS

Idioms in English Language are fixed expressions which provide more than surface, synthetic and semantic meaning. In other words, the hearer needs to think deeper to understand the meaning of an idiomatic expression.

Surprisingly surprising, most users of English as second language are fond of jettisoning the standard version of English idiom, in particular, the standard British English variety. Misuse of idioms has become so fossilized amongst users due to care free attitude to the standard variety of English, rough transition from Mother Tongue (MT) to the Target Language (TL) and incompetent tutors among others. It is high time we learnt to use standard variety of English Language, and put a stop to the adulterated use.

COMMONLY MISUSED IDIOMS

- (a) You cannot eat your cake and have it (Incorrect)
- (b) You cannot have your cake and eat it. (Correct)

BRITISH AND AMERICAN ENGLISH DICHOTOMY

The disparity or differences between British and American English is no more a news to the students of English. In fact, these two popular varieties of English is like two sides of the same coin. It is not uncommon to see the computer underlining British variety of

English words as spelling errors until you command the system to ignore. The reason is not far fetched, MOST COMPUTER SOFTWARES WERE CONFIGURED IN AMERICAN ENGLISH

This linguistic differences cut across the lexis, semantics and phonetics.

PHONETICS DIFFERENCES

There is also a variation in the way and manner the speakers of the two varieties place the primary and the secondary stress on some syllables of English words. In words containing more than one syllable, one syllable is expected to be pronounced louder than the other or others. Simply put, a syllable is a bit of an utterance. A word may contain one syllable { mono syllabic word }, a word may contain two syllables { bi syllabic words }, while a word may contain more than two syllables { polysyllabic word }. The most important thing to note however is that a primary stress can only be placed on only one syllable regardless of the number of syllables contained in a word. In the dictionary, the syllable taking the tonic or primary stress is indicated with a stroke up, while the stroke down represents the secondary stress. The stressed syllable may also be represented with uppercase letters while the unstressed syllable or syllables are represented with lower case letters

Some of the challenges users of English as a second language encounter can be traced to different sources and this include:

1. Mother Tongue (MT) interference
2. Shortage of specialist or qualified teachers of English. In most private primary and secondary schools, quacks and gate crashers have taken over the role of English language teachers and this is not helping the situation
3. Lackadaisical (carefree) attitude of learners is a major issue or reason why sub-standard variety of English keep spreading like a fire in the haramattan.

RECOMMENDATION

It is apparent that there cannot be smoke without fire. Now we have seen the smoke, and we have seen the fire.

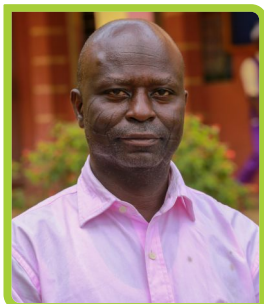

I advise teachers, students and all users of English as a second language to strive for improvement in all the skills making up communication: reading, writing, listening and speaking.

A philosopher says "He who is tired of learning is tired of life and such individual will continue to suffer from intellectual malnutrition".

This write-up is not meant to throw away the linguistic opinion that there exists a Nigerian English but this variety is sub-divided into categories or varieties (Variety I – IV) according to Ayo Banjo Bamgbose, Jowitt, et al and other veterans in linguistics. Nevertheless, we should always endeavour to move from lower variety to the higher variety.

We can do this by listening to radio station and television stations where standard variety of English is given a priority. Listening to BBC, VOA, and some local stations with international content.

Above all, the school and colleges should invest more in the training of their English language teachers. Provision of a well equipped language laboratories, audio-visual and audio gadgets would go a long way in stemming the tide of sub standard English.
